

For Immediate Release
June 11, 2019

Contact: Alexis Abate
215-780-1390

Amy Castleberry Receives Master of Science in Blindness and Low Vision Rehabilitation Degree

Elkins Park, PA – Amy Castleberry, of Cheltenham, Pa., was recently awarded the Master of Science degree in Blindness and Low Vision Rehabilitation during the 118th commencement ceremony of Salus University held at the Kimmel Center in Philadelphia.

Amy is a 2013 graduate of The University of Alabama, Tuscaloosa, Ala., with both a bachelor's degree and master's degree. During her time at Salus, Amy was a Blindness and Low Vision Studies Student Council Representative. She was also a Lions Service Foundation Scholarship Recipient.

Amy completed her clinical internship with The Southwestern Blind Rehabilitation Center at the Southern Arizona Veterans Affairs Health Care System, and upon completion of the internship, was hired as a Blindness and Low Vision Rehabilitation Specialist serving America's veterans who have lost their vision to illness or injury.

About Salus University

Salus University, founded as the Pennsylvania College of Optometry in 1919, today is a diversified, globally recognized professional academic center of learning that offers a wide range of degree programs in the professions of Optometry, Audiology, Physician Assistant, Public Health, Blindness and Low Vision Studies, Biomedicine, Occupational Therapy and Speech-Language Pathology. Salus operates four clinical facilities in Philadelphia and Montgomery counties that provide highly specialized vision, hearing and balance, and speech-language pathology services. The University has more than 1,200 students and more than 11,300 alumni worldwide. For more information, please visit www.salus.edu.