Pennsylvania Ear Institute of Salus University Sponsors Hearing Aid Donation and Upgrade Event in Recognition of Better Hearing and Speech Month

Elkins Park, Pa. – The Pennsylvania Ear Institute (PEI) of Salus University is offering the local community a chance to give back and upgrade their current hearing aids in honor of May’s Better Hearing and Speech Month. From May 22-31, 2017, anyone who brings in their current hearing aids to PEI for donation will receive $250 off the purchase of each new hearing aid (up to a $500 discount).

All donated hearing aids must be functioning. PEI’s audiologists will clean all traded-in devices and prepare them to be donated to someone in need through Lions Clubs International, the world’s largest service organization dedicated to providing numerous types of service for health, youth, elderly, the environment and disaster relief both home and abroad.

PEI director and pediatric audiologist, Dr. Lindsay Bondurant, hopes the event will help connect those in need with the assistive listening technology they require and give current hearing aid wearers the ability to explore new, upgraded devices.

“Our primary goal is to raise awareness about the importance of hearing and the effects of hearing loss, in hopes that people who are struggling to hear clearly, or know someone who is having difficulty hearing, seek a consultation with a licensed audiologist,” she said.
