Historic Ceremony: They'll Be No Forgetting the Class of 2024

Salus University's 129th commencement was memorable for several reasons, but it will go down as historic in the sense that according to Salus president Michael H. Mittelman, OD '80, MPH, MBA, FAAO, FACHE, it's the final fall ceremony where the diplomas will carry the name "Salus University." Next year's graduates will receive Drexel University diplomas, marking a new chapter in the two institutions' shared journey of merging, pending approval by the United States Department of Education, specialized accreditors, and additional third parties. Read more

New Interim Optometry Dean Ready to Move Program Forward

As he stepped into the role of interim dean at the Pennsylvania College of Optometry \(PCO\), Salus at Drexel University, Jeffrey L. Weaver, OD '85, MBA, MS, FAAO, FACHE, knew he was in for a challenge. "I've entered difficult situations before, but I'm committed to this one," he said, emphasizing his dedication as an alum who wants PCO to be the best optometry school in the nation. Read more
