SEP Class of 2023 Ready for the Challenges of Optometry School

Klaesyn Sibless wanted to become an optometrist because one of her cousins was born blind. But thanks to a couple of surgeries and extensive vision therapy, he's now able to see out of one eye.

"I wanted to be able to provide that kind of care to people," she said.

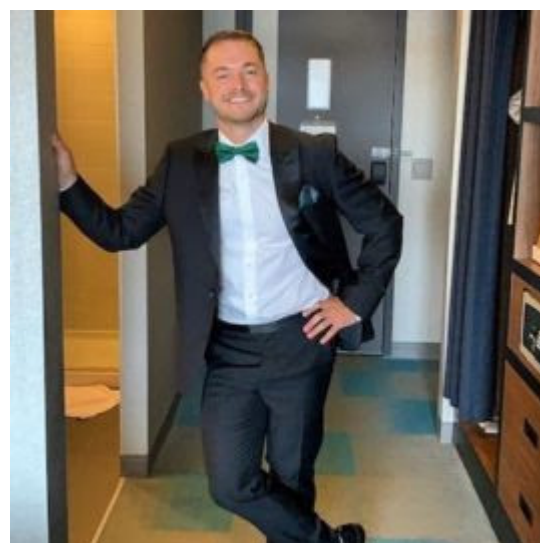

And, she's taken the next step on her professional journey as Sibless was one of nine students who recently completed the

First Occupational Therapy Alumni Association President: Zac Saunders, MSOT '17

When Zachary Saunders, MSOT '17, interviewed at Salus University, he felt connected and it was where he needed to be.

"It was cool, and I really enjoyed that feeling," said Saunders. "The school was more welcoming than some other schools where I was accepted. Salus was like, 'We want to be part of your educational journey,' and I really appreciated that."

And, now he's stepping up as Alumni Association board president, effective June 6, 2023, for a one-year term. He is believed to be the first Occupational Therapy (OT) alum to ascend to the position.
