Presidential Medal of Honor Awardees

The Presidential Medal of Honor is bestowed upon those who have made contributions to their profession and for their service to Salus University. They are not only people who have contributed to a specific program or College, but most importantly, to the professions they serve.

Find out who received the awards this year and continue to watch the Salus website for stories on each of the winners.

Legacy Scholarship Helps Audiology Students

When Kathy Foltner, AuD '02, was in school, she was fortunate enough to have four years of private high school and four years of college paid for by her mother. When it came time for her master's degree, her mother was supportive of the effort, but told Foltner "you need to figure out how to pay for it because I'm done paying for school."

Now, Dr. Foltner is eager to ease that burden and pay it forward to help future audiologists through an endowed scholarship for students in the University's Osborne College of Audiology \(OCA\).

Flipped Learning: Children are the Teachers

It may be too soon to tell, but it's possible that 23-month-old Fiona Fischer could follow in her mother's footsteps and pursue a career in healthcare education. Her mom, Michelle Fischer, MMS '09, PA-C, is an assistant professor in the Physician Assistant (PA) Studies program at Salus University and one of the instructors in the Pediatric Workshop, a hands-on learning experiential learning component of the physical diagnosis course first year PA students are participating in this summer.

According to Fischer, this type of experiential learning is where the students get to practice taking histories and performing physical exams on children.
